H WAKONO, JULY SRD. 1826. THE rapid growth into favour in China American drills and sheetings has been frequently commented upon of late years. The attention of English manufacturers has seversitimes been called to the matter, and if they care to retain their hold on Eastern markets they will do well to pay more heed to the latest warnings given. In his report on the trade of Tientsin Mr. Commissioner DETRING says:-" I have once more to note the remarkable increase in the importation of American sheetings; there in 1885 have been-4-per-cent,-more-in-quantity_than_in. the previous year, which itself showed an advance of 34 per cent. on the year 1888. The English manufacture which passes under the same name has remained stationary at 26.0 10 pieces -the thirtieth part only of the pany, which shows that the net premiums in the teak at one side and coming out divided into American import—a state of things which ought to afford some practical lessons to manufacturers." At Chefoo, too, a large increase is recorded in-the import of American Sheetings, the figures being 160,697 pieces in 1885 as compared with 102,650 pieces in 1884. It is true that there was also an increase 15th July, for a cruise to Port Arthur, Wei-hai- tioned. On the upper floor is a machine for shar- threatened to stab him to death if he did so. He is a, then there will arise many causes of quarrel. ing. in the import of English sheetings at this port, Wai, and Chefco. "One who knows," writes to the quantity being 78,475 pieces in 1885 as against 45,188 pieces in 1884, but the increase dooked, several of them not having been in dock ting machine for gulletting out the teeth of does not keep pace with that in the American since they left Europe, their speed having taken circular saws; also two wood working lathes. denied having threatened this witness, by the gressive These parties profiting by frontier within eighty the crept along until off consequently considerably. Is it a question. The joiners' shop proper is adjoining the room. fabric. At Shanghai a similar result is record. ed. Mr. C muissioner Hosson cells special attention to it in the following remarks:-"As proving how the Manchester mills are Shanghai on the 25th June by the express issued being competed with attention is drawn t the fact that out of the 1,610,063 pieces sheeting laid down 1,300,675 were of American manufacture." It seems too that, only 221,937 pieces of English drill were imported at Shanghai in 1885 as compared with 471,434 pieces American. In many other ports similar results, on a much smaller scale of course, are shown; but at Wenchow the import of American drills fell from 1,155 pieces in 1884 to 748 pieces in 1885. while English drills progressed from 1,835 in 1884 to 2.190 pieces in 1885. Wenchow, however, is rather the excepandoubled -fact that American Piece Goods have gained ground in China and the Far East owing to the excellence of their quality. The Lancashire manufacturers cannot too soon become alive to the circumstance that some of their goods no longer

HAINAN.

The late Mr. James Twinem, Acting Commissioner of Customs at Kiungchow, in his report for last year, says :--A large and lucrative passenger traffic by junks exists between the island of Hainan and pe mit-Singapore and Bangkok. Great efforts have been made by the forign merchants of this port toinduce intending emigrants to leave by steamer. These efforts have only been partially successful. Soveral difficulties are in the way. Many of the districts from which emigrants come-Wenchang, Lok-hui, and Hui-t'ung, for instance,are situated a considerable distance from Hoihow, and a long notice has to be given of the expected arrival of a steamer. A steamer arriving before the time advertised has either to suffer detention or leave without her complement of passengers; on theother hand, one arriving after the time specified may arrive to fin I that many of the emigrants have returned to their homes or resorted to other means of transport. Another drawback is that the districts where most of those live who wish to seek their fortunes abroad being, as stated, situated at a distance from Hoihow, many Hainanese are yearly carried off by junks which visit ports on the coast of this island adjacent to their homes. These junks take coolies to Java, Sumatra, and Siam to work/

Dr. Water F. Morgan, of Leavenworth, Kan. sends withe Medical Record this curious account of what may be called aviarian surgery, related to him in 1876 by the late Joseph O'Brien, Esq., of Cleveland, Ohio :- "On going into his barn, Mr. O'Brien discovered a swallow's nest; and, being a natural observer and lover of animals, he climbed to the nest, and found in it two young swallows, one being smaller and less vicerous than the other, and having a slighter covering of feathers. Upon taking the young bird in his hand, he was astonished to find one of its legs very thoroughly bandaged with horse hairs. Having carefully removed the hairs, one by one, he was still more astonished to find that the nestling's leg was broken. Mr. O'Brien carefully replaced the bird in its nest, and resolved to await farther developments. Upon visiting the 'patient' the next day, the leg was again found bandaged as before. The bird-surgeon was not again interfered with, and the case being kept under observation, in about two weeks it was found that the hairs were being cantiously removed, only a few each day; and finally, when all were taken off, the callus was distinctly felt and the union of the bone evidently perfect, as the bird was able to fly off with its mates. Such instances may seem incredible to those not yet prepared to fully accept the axiom of the scientists. viz... 'that the intelligence of animals differs from that of man only in degree, and not in

sent to Marlborough House, of which, however. he has not, so far, made very much use. A curious Foothow ... incident, by the bye, has arisen out of the Emperor of Russia's fondness for photography.

Being anxious to have a practical lesson when last in Moscow he maid a maid to be maid a maid to be maid a maid to be maid to b last in Moscow, he paid a visit by arrangement to Levitzky's, the Court photographer, and when leaving the studio he chanced to meet on the stairs what seemed to be a tall lady dressed in the height of fashion. But this tell female was. in reality, a young sub-lieutenant in the Russian Guards, Alexis Pletneff by name, who, in fulfil-Bolinan ment of a wager he had lost with a pretty cousin, Hougkong.... had gone to Levitzky's to be photographed in feminine attire. At the sight of the Czar the young officer quite lost his presence of mind, and, instead of curtaeying and passing on, he drew himself up as on parade, and gave the military salute in the regulation fashion. The Emperor naturally surprised, ask for an explanation, and, when the young officer had confessed, bade him get himself photographed, and then report himself, just as he was, to the colonel of his regiment, This, Sub-Lieutenant Pletneff duly did, and as he found the colonel writing a letter he sat down and waited. The colonel looking up, however, in the course of a few minutes, and seeing what appeared like a handsome woman, began to apolegies, whilst Plentneff as eagerly tried to explain his ridiculous situation. When the colonel a rigid disciplinarian, grasped the truth, he was so upset that he nearly choke i, and the young officer, rushing to his assistance, commenced to unbutton his military stock. But at this moment the colonel's wife chanced to enter, and, scaing her husband in the arms of a lady, was so scandalised that she rushed on the old gentleman, and dragging him away, apostrophised the luokless sub-lieutenant as "a shameless mink," and the like. It was some time before a third confession so far cleared up matters as to satisfy the colonel's wife. The end of the amusing complication is not very tragic. The Czar, having heard the whole of the story from Pletneff's colonel, ordered that the latter should be let off with two days' arrest, on condition that he handed to his Majesty a copy of the photograph the taking of which had led to such a catalogue of misunderstandings.
